

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS FOR CHILDREN.
A Certain Relief for Feverishness, Constipation, Headache, Stomach Troubles, Teething Disorders, and Destructive Coughs. The Break-up Cough. Don't accept any substitute. A. S. OLMSTED, Le Roy, N. Y.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy.

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed.

This home-made cough syrup is now back in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only 54 cents—a full pint of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils.

You will be pleasantly surprised how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and breaks the induced membranes in a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in quinine, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind. Adv.

ORPET IS HELD TO GRAND JURY

Coroner's Inquest Ends Suddenly and Student Is Recommended Held.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—William Orpet, University of Wisconsin junior, was held to the grand jury Monday in connection with the death of his former sweetheart, Marian Frances Lambert.

The coroner's inquest ceased suddenly Monday afternoon and the jurors returned a verdict finding that the girl came to her death by cyanide of potassium poisoning and recommending that Orpet be held.

Orpet is 20 years old and Miss Lambert, a high school pupil, was 17. A liaison, according to Orpet, existed between the two. It appeared from letters introduced into the case that the girl feigned approaching motherhood. Orpet, after arranging an alibi to make it appear that he had not left Madison, Wis., visited Miss Lambert at Lake Forest, a suburb, two weeks ago. The next day her body was found.

Quick Decision As a Business Asset

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Copyright, 1916, Star Co.

One ship sails east and another sails west.

With the very same winds that blow.

'Tis the set of the sails, and not the sales.

That tells them the way to go. Like the winds of the sea are the ways of fate.

As we voyage along thro' life. 'Tis the set of a soul that decides its goal.

And not the calm or the strife.

"About a year ago I was compelled to give up a profession I had been training for all my life—or give up my life. I preferred the former.

I took a rest, an opportunity presented itself in the country town where I was. I learned a little something about the mail order business. I determined to again visit New York and secure a better position. I came on knowing nobody and with no visible opportunity in sight.

I visited two places, one the leading monthly magazine of its class in the country.

"In the three interviews I had with the vice president of the concern I changed his ideas so completely that from a 'don't want' attitude he not only thanked me for telling him where his magazine was weak, but I had brought him around to a 'must-have' a-man-to-do-what-you-say feeling, and the only reason I am not on that publication today is, because while he had been making up his mind I had accepted a position as correspondent with one of the largest concerns of the sort in the city. I visited two places. I could have secured two good positions—and I am puny, sickly looking, undersized individual at that. I was so earnest they had to believe me. Moral: If you don't find an opportunity, make one. H. A. L."

Men Prone to Blame Fate.
That is a good letter, and I am glad to give it publicity. We are so ready to blame Fate for our misfortunes and our failures, when a little careful analysis of our own natures and methods would explain many of them.

The very first thing to cultivate after honesty of purpose and a belief of your own divine inheritance is decision.

Make up your mind promptly what you will do in small matters: If it is a question of going out or staying in, of writing or reading a book, of making a call or taking a walk, decide it, and then act on your decision. Do not shilly-shally and waste your mental energies in indecision or wait to consult other people regarding it.

Form the habit of choosing a course of action for yourself, and if you find on going out that it would have been wiser to remain at home, take the experience as a lesson on the next occasion and lose no time in regrets or doubts of yourself.

Once you begin to depend upon your own judgment in small affairs it will become easier for you to form logical opinions for your course of conduct in more serious affairs.

Unable to Decide.
Believe in yourself. Remember you have just as good a right to walk in God's avenues of happiness and success and usefulness as any one else. You are just as near the throne as any mortal who ever lived, or who lives today.

No matter how humble your station you are an important part of the universe, or you would not be here.

Keep that always in mind. Then expect good influences to guide you. Think of yourself as encircled by a holy line, over which nothing but good can pass. Be in earnest. Be so in earnest, that, as my correspondent says, people must believe in you.

A young man recently wrote me that he loved art and liked law; he asked me to decide for him whether he should become an artist or a lawyer. He feared whichever choice he made he would regret the idea abandoned. I might as well advise a weathervane which way to turn as such a man. His own mind is laying the foundation of failure.

Learn to choose your own course in life. Then preserve in it with such industry that nothing can move you. Learn how to hoist your sails and any wind that blows will take you into port.

COLLEGE MAN, LIVING IN HUT, SPURNS AID
Offered Assistance But Decides He Will Win on Own Resources.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 22.—H. S. Cole, now in his second year at the local "Tech," broke the ice out of his wash basin this morning, inhaled a gust from across the Flats, and decided his home-made shack and independence suited him nicely, thank you. So he made up his mind to go on and hoe his own row and decline offers of assistance with thanks.

Since the newspapers in several cities over the country published stories of how Cole, lacking funds for an education, built himself a one-room shack on a borrowed lot near Tech and was keeping house all alone, the young Marietta boy has received several offers of assistance.

A woman reader in Louisville, Ky., offered to finance him through college and a similar offer came from Corinth, Miss.

But Cole says he has had a good start and thinks he prefers to stick it out, depending solely on his own resources and pluck.

PANAMA EXPOSITION TO OPEN THIS MONTH
All Latin-American Republics Have Exhibits in Handsome Buildings.

International News Service.
PANAMA, Feb. 22.—In the latter part of February the republic of Panama will open a National exposition. It commemorates at the same time the completion of the Panama canal and the achievements of Vasco Nunez de Balboa, who discovered the Pacific from the Isthmus in 1513.

The army transport Logan and other vessels brought to the exposition the best part of the American government exhibit at the Panama-Pacific exposition. William E. Tuttle of New Jersey and Col. Mahlon R. Margerum arranged the display here.

Spain, Cuba and all the Latin-American countries have exhibits in handsome buildings. The grounds are within sight of the height from which it is said Balboa caught his first glimpse of the Pacific and the canal can be seen, also. The exhibition will continue through the balmy dry season.

In many buildings will be shown the products of the fertile soil of Panama, a beautiful collection of Panama woods obtained from virgin forests, and the flower, plant and animal life of Panama in all its variety and abundance.

Non-Residents Subscribing

The Industrial Bureau of the South Bend Chamber of Commerce

A subscription blank pledging $100, has been received for the Industrial fund from a resident of one of the interurban cities adjacent to South Bend, who has property in this city and who is interested in the welfare and building up of the community.

This is encouraging to the workers and should stand as a telling argument why South Bend business men should contribute to the fund which will be used to induce manufacturers to locate here. $25,000 is the amount needed. It is proposed to raise this fund by taking notes payable every three months during the present year. Other cities of less than half the population of South Bend have raised funds several times this amount for this same purpose.

South Bend cannot afford to ignore the possibilities of this movement. If we remain idle while other communities with no greater, and frequently with less, natural advantages are making a direct financially-backed effort to secure new industries, the result will certainly not be to our credit.

A stranger coming into South Bend recently was asked what he has heard of the city—what was the general opinion in the town where he lived. His answer was far from flattering:

"I've always heard of South Bend as a good sized town lying asleep around some wonderfully big factories!"

Shall we continue to allow this false impression to be circulated? Or shall we make a determined effort to raise this very reasonable amount that the Industrial Committee has asked for, and place our city up among the leading progressive cities?

Figures prove that every 1,000 workers brought into a community, the increased benefits to all concerned can be practically computed.

In the next talk we will quote a few statistics—and try to make them interesting.
